Dear Educator:

We have published and distributed resources for financial assistance since 2005. Our mission is to increase awareness and access to government and other programs established to relieve struggles over money. Starting with social workers, we've armed American counselors with resources to assist troubled employees and families. Our workplace posters are found in many esteemed locations including the Smithsonian Institute and NASA. Our posters can even be spotted in Hollywood movie scenes.

We're thrilled to be sharing this special edition for educators in America.

We know that students, parents, and administrators can increase your stress levels. The last thing you should be losing sleep over should be personal money worries. We welcome your comments or suggestions to improve this resource. Thanks for downloading, sharing, and posting. You may hang the poster in the teacher's lounge or anywhere else your peers will see it. If you'd like to add it to your website, please give us a head's up that you have done so, and we'll have a look. Thank you for molding young minds and shaping the future.

Best to you,

David
